THE SEVEN-HOUR SYNDROME

"... zzzzzz ... fifteen more minutes until the bell rings ... won't this class ever end? ... and all that homework! ... does he think this is my only class?
..."

At some point, every student at Elba High finds himself caught up in the monotonous routine of mandatory studies. We come to class, match wits with the faculty, struggle through tests, and search for meaning in the midst of it all. Even though the drudgery seems endless, there must be an underlying factor uniting all aspects of school life. Where can we find it?

It's in the people: people alive with emotion, people experiencing themselves and others.

Emotion is only a fraction of the total being: the mind dominates. Each day, we are flooded with a torrent of new ideas rushing at us from all directions. Our individual ideas become a mixture of the thoughts and conceptions of persons around. We are free to accept, reject, or compromise these ideas. This freedom to decide gives us our individuality.

People with different lifestyles and varied interests form the many facets of the total scene of Elba High School. As the pieces fall into place, we become a complete body, united by a common purpose.

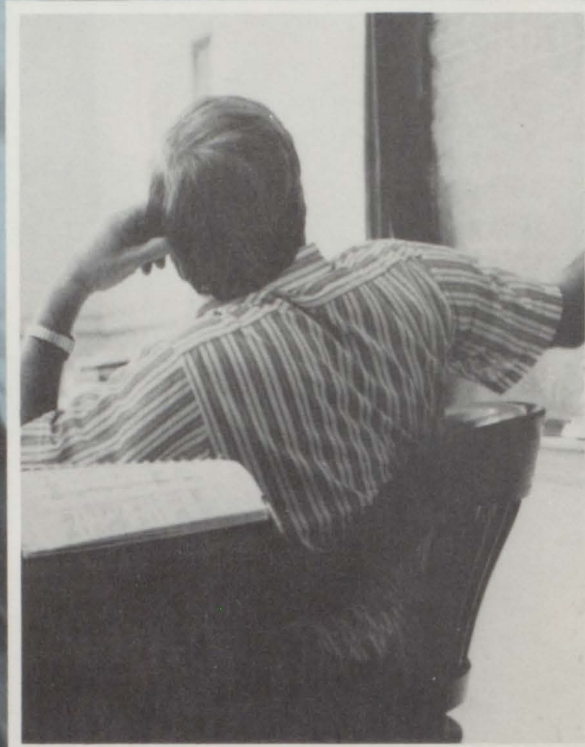

Academics . . . the part of school that parents stress most and that students like least.

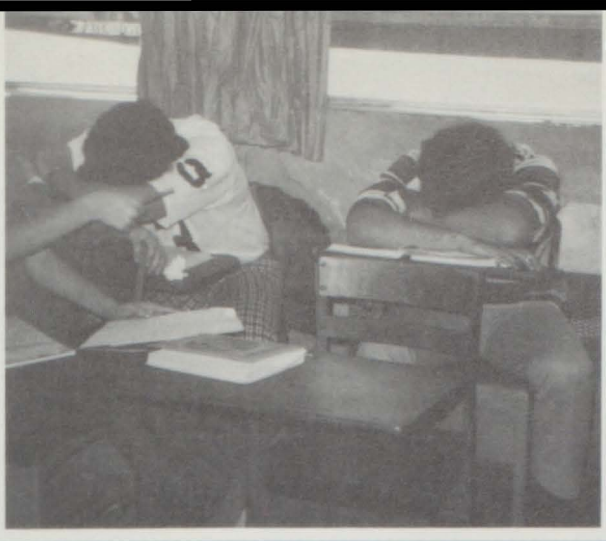

ABOVE: A student takes time out for last minute cramming before that important test.

RIGHT: Mr. Windham illustrates his point for the fifth time in an hour in hopes to make that one student understand.

BELOW: Students work against the clock to reach that distant goal—sixty words a minute.

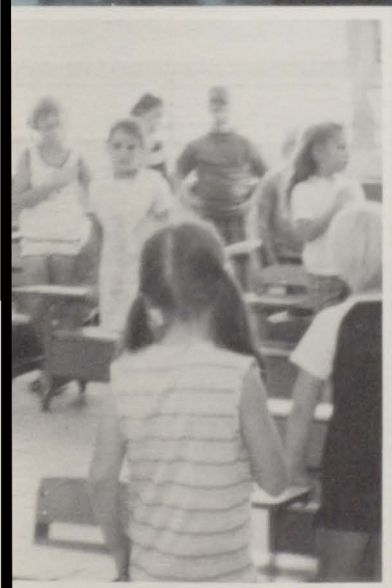

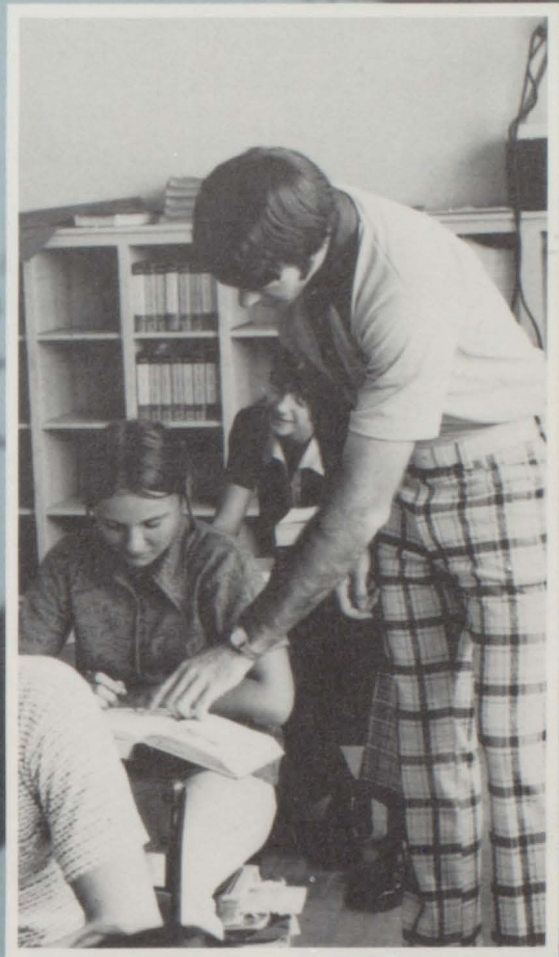

LOWER LEFT: Love of country as well as the three R's will be taught to these second graders throughout their school life.

RIGHT: Coach Bensinger takes class time to settle questions in a student's mind in an effort to increase individualized instruction.

LOWER RIGHT: Some students find it much easier to "borrow" answers than to study.

Not all of school is study and hardwork.

Wherever people get together, something is bound to happen.

LEFT: In the four short minutes between classes, students find time to swap the latest gossip, do some last minute homework, and get the scoop on last period's test.

LOWER LEFT: Books and studies are abandoned at precisely 12:25 as students enjoy the day's highlight: lunch.

CENTER: Laden with books, the recess crowd streams back into the building after the shortest fifteen minutes of the day.

LOWER RIGHT: Even with a tight schedule, there is always time for a friendly little fight.

BELOW: Although the lunchroom finds itself the brunt of many jokes, students and teachers still enjoy the food and fellowship.

ELBA HIGH SCHOOL

Organization and Enthusiasm

Homecoming Spirit . . . Elba High was alive with it from the first preparations to the end. This spirit originated from the long hard hours of work in anticipation of Homecoming Day.

The Student Council had the enormous task of coordinating all activities for Homecoming. This year's honored class was the Class of '43. The festivities officially began with the bonfire and Pep Rally Thursday night on the track field. The action continued Friday morning with the coronation of the Homecoming Court, followed by the traditional parade that afternoon.

The winners in the float competition were: first place, the 7th grade's Tiger Volkswagen; second place, "Tigers Can Do Anything" from the 10th grade; third place, the 9th grade's "Walking Tall."

Winners of the school club cars were as follows: first place to the Pep Club; second place to the French Club; and third place to the Science Club.

The events were climaxed Friday night with an exciting game against the Trojans from Charles Henderson High School. After the game, students and alumni attended the semi-formal dance until midnight.

combined to make Homecoming '73 the best yet

Every high school girl dreams of being honored by her fellow classmates with the title of Homecoming Queen. For Kathy Bowers, the dream came true. Her bright smile and friendly personality lent a warm glow to the Homecoming activities.

The Senior Class selected the lovely Brenda Spann as their court attendant. Theresa Crook was chosen to represent the Juniors. Delisa Smith held the honor of Sophomore Class attendant, and Connie Carpenter was voted Freshman Class Attendant.

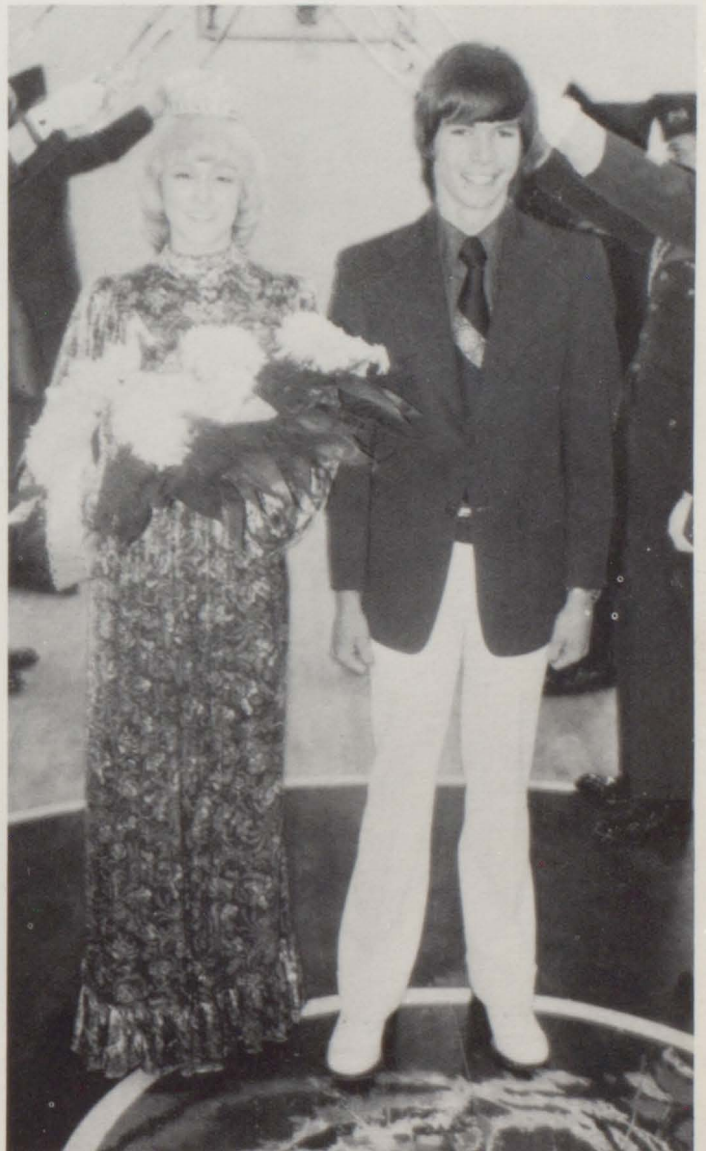

Friday morning, the Queen was coronated in a beautiful and impressive coronation ceremony in which the band and ROTC performed. Jack Brunson, Student Council President, crowned Kathy and presented her flowers before the student body. The attendants were also presented flowers by representatives from their respective classes.

In the parade, the Homecoming Court rode the beautiful Queen's float planned and built by the Seniors.

As any football player knows, there's a lot more to the game than people see from the stands. Hours are spent working out and planning plays, organizing strategy, and building up the spirit for each battle.

Even though it's up to the eleven team members to get that ball across the goal line, they depend on support from the coaches, the guys on the sideline, the Pep Club, the cheerleaders, and the crowds that follow their teams so faithfully. Whether victorious or defeated, it's all in the game.

The fast pace of the game . . .
the excitement of being near the action . . . the unity of the crowd . . .

Basketball at Elba High has something for everyone. There is no better way to spend a Friday night than to get caught up in the spirit of a basketball game. The excitement is felt heavily in the hot gym air as the team and the crowd strain and sweat together for those two points. Sink it, sink it!! The score rises along with the tension. Feet pound the floor as teams race from goal to goal. All eyes are on the ball and the player whose hands grip it. The game becomes a battle between the two student bodies, as well as between teams. The players' feeling show on their faces . . . determination . . . that drive to win . . . tremendous physical effort. A victory would mean not only that the best team won, but that the best student body won. Make those points, guys. Win it for all of us.

We are very proud of this year's Tiger team. They placed third in the Andalusia tournament, and participated in several others. The man behind this year's team is Coach Mance Daughtery. A Beauty Contest . . . hope, tension, excitement, a special closeness among contestants . . .

For the people of Elba, a beauty contest is something to look forward to. Every girl who passes across the stage is beautiful to someone in the audience, for out there sit the family and friends who know and love her.

Every contestant dreams of wearing the crown and holding the roses at the end of the night, but for one especially beautiful girl with the extra something, this dream will come true. That little extra something may be a bright smile, sparkling eyes, or a graceful walk, but it is certain to be found in any beauty queen. The judges must pick it out, and award the winner not only with a title, but with a great honor that she will carry in her memory throughout her life.

We proudly present to you the beauties of our year, 1974.

TOP ELBALA BEAUTY

Vanessa Newman

On the night of December 5, thirty-eight lovely girls from grades nine through twelve waited nervously for the annual Miss Elbala Contest to begin. Finally the Master of Ceremonies, Lt. Col. Earl Perry, appeared, and things soon got underway.

As each girl appeared on stage in casual and formal attire, the decision became increasingly difficult for the judges. The result, however, was at last announced and Miss Vanessa Newman, a 5'5" senior, was crowned.

Lovely, green-eyed Vanessa is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wyndol Newman. Since coming to Elba High School four years ago, she has become well-known and liked by both students and faculty. She is a varsity cheerleader and secretary of the Student Council. As she walks through the halls of E.H.S. Vanessa can hold her head high and claim a title no one else can claim—Miss Elbala for 1974.

"And the new Miss Elba is No. 1 . . . Bev Cox!"

Proud parents share with their daughter the joy and honor of the Miss Elba crown as her equally excited sister holds the winning number.

An amazed and happy Bev appears on stage when the winner is announced.

The judges had a difficult task choosing only one winner from this group of lovely participants.

What time is it? . . . Have you seen all those PEOPLE OUT THERE? . . . Does my hair look OK? . . . Pass that Vaseline . . . Well, at least the swimsuit competition is over . . . Who can be expected to smile when all those lights are glaring at you? . . . Oh, no! . . . I'm next! The mass confusion back stage gave way to total composure on stage.

A multitude of emotions such as these swept through the minds of twenty-eight excited girls on the night of the Miss Elba Contest. Each girl had her own special doubt, but poise and grace triumphed and the pageant flowed along as smoothly as the girls themselves.

This contest was unique in that it was held in the spring of our Junior year so that the lucky winner could prepare for the National Peanut Festival in the fall.

The judges were besieged with indecision. Twice, the girls were called from the stage so that the judges could get a closer look—added pressure, to be sure, but dazzling smiles prevailed. Finally a decision was reached: Miss Beverly Cox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Cox, captured both the swimsuit competition and the coveted title of Miss Elba, 1974.

Tears streaming freely—not to mention mascara—Miss Paula Taylor received the title of Miss Congeniality.

Pleasant memories of roses, crowns, tears, ruined make-up, lightly wrinkled dresses, but undampened spirits will always make each of those twenty-eight girls smile.

Bev Cox, winner; Vickie Crook, first runner-up; Brenda Spann, second runner-up.

Paula Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Taylor, was honored by being chosen Miss Congeniality by her fellow contestants.

A smile,

Little Sherri Kennett crowns the new Little Miss Elba, Stephanie Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Smith.

a crown, a title...

Little Miss Elba 1973-74

A little girl's dream come true . . . first runner-up, Susie King; second runner-up, Stacy Carpenter; and the winner, Stephanie Smith.

Stephanie is surrounded by hugs and kisses from other friends in the contest.

With the help of the second grade teachers, the contestants practice for the big night.

In the lives of second grade girls, where getting to go to the grocery store with mommy is a big event, a beauty contest stands out in their minds as being a very special occurrence—something that “big girls” do.

This special experience for the girls was the annual Little Miss Elba contest, held on September 28, 1973. Every year the winner not only receives the honor of being Elba's prettiest little girl, but she also attends the Dothan Peanut Festival.

The girls were so quiet back stage that you could have heard a pin drop—very much unlike their older counterparts. It was an exciting night for all the girls—one they will probably never forget, especially Stephanie Smith, our reigning Little Miss Elba!

Student Council

The Student Council is the leading organization and the governing body at Elba High. The objectives are to coordinate activities between the students, faculty, and community, and to build a better relationship among these groups.

Thus far, the Student Council has been more active than it has in the past few years. This was the year for innovation: the Student Council instigated the new Student Handbook and the morning devotions over the P.A. system. In addition, the Council had full charge of homecoming activities, including the parade and dance. It sponsored the Christmas assembly program and other programs of a patriotic theme, and also provided the first Valentine's Day dance.

Beta Club

The Beta Club is an honorary society composed of those students in grades 9 through 12 who have achieved at least a B average in each credit course for the year. The students who maintain this average for three semesters are recognized at graduation.

Each year the Beta Club sponsors a variety feature program in which students participate. This activity which serves as the club's main fund raising project, provides funds which are used for the purchase of serviceable equipment for the school.

Beta Club members enjoy many activities during the year, but each year is highlighted by the annual Beta Club convention in Birmingham in the spring. The Club's sponsor, Waylon Sharpless, has been with the club 10 years, and has guided the Beta Club into what it is today.

French Club

Seventy-four students who enjoy the study of French culture and civilization as well as the study of the language make up the Elba High School French Club. Every spring, members plan an exhibit and skit, and prepare to attend the annual French Club Convention held at the University of Alabama. Elba is always well represented, for all delegates find the two convention days to be fun-filled and informative.

Mu Alpha Theta

Mu Alpha Theta is an honorary national organization which seeks to foster achievement and excellence in the field of Mathematics. Active members of the club must have acquired at least a B average in four consecutive semesters of college preparatory mathematics—algebra, geometry, trigonometry, and analysis—courses that are not sciences, but arts.

This year the activities of Mu Alpha Theta range from the renovation of a classroom to participation in the state Mu Alpha Theta Convention and math tournaments. Previously, the Elba High School Math Team has received first, second, and third place trophies in tournaments throughout the state.

Drama Club

The Drama Club is a new addition to the clubs at Elba High School. It was formed to provide interested students with the opportunity to be a part of a dramatic production, which requires both individual and group effort. Members of the club plan to present one play and several variety shows for their own enjoyment and satisfaction as well as for the entertainment of the student body.

Science Club

Members of the Science Club are those students who have an active interest in the many areas of science. Through participation in this club, members are able to add to their scientific knowledge and to make progress toward practical application of this knowledge.

Meetings of the Science Club often feature informative talks by resource people from different science-connected vocations. During the year the club also sends representatives to the Alabama State Junior Academy of Science Conventions.

V.I.C.A.

Vocational Industrial Clubs of America is an organization for youth enrolled in vocational trade and industrial education. VICA is one of the fastest growing youth organizations in America. It is very popular with young people and has been very successful in developing leadership in the field of industry and skilled trades.

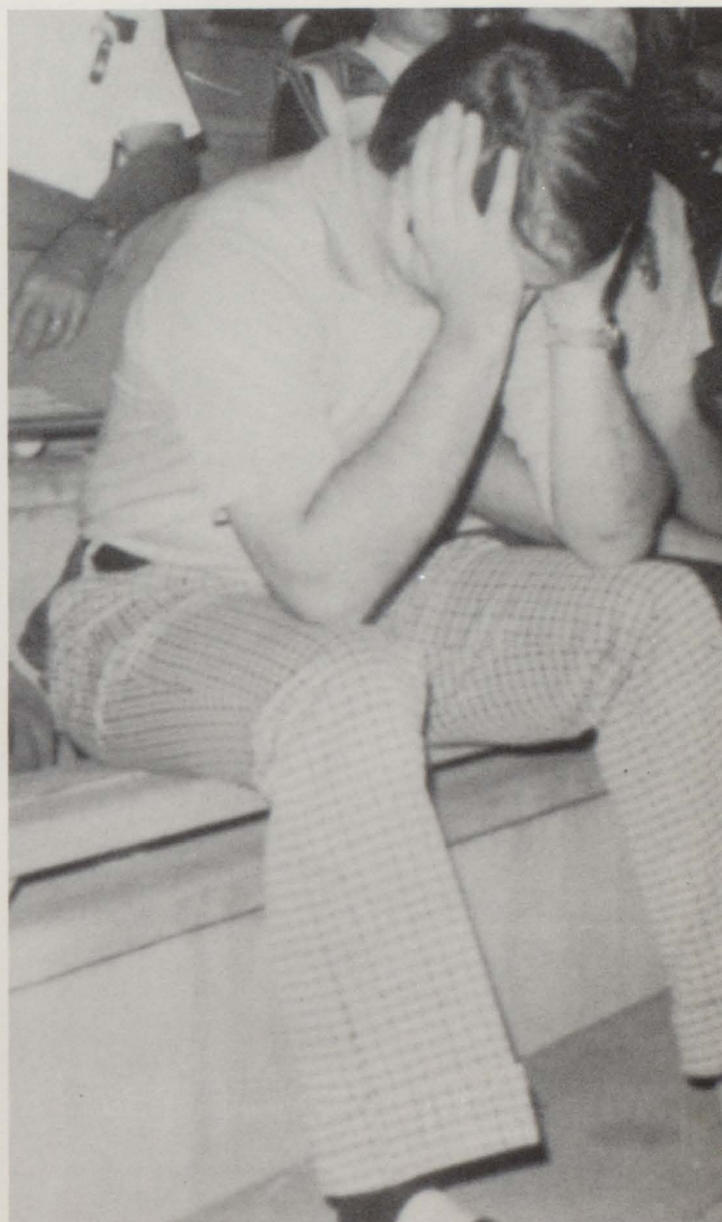

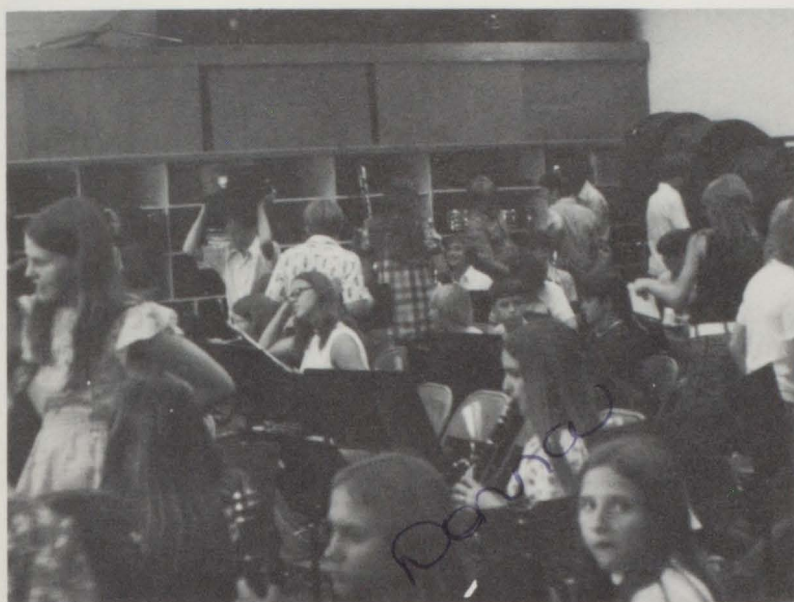

In its first year, the Elba Chapter of VICA set several records in the annual Skills Contest in District competition winning first place in Automechanics and Machine Drafting, second place in Arc Welding and MIG and TIG Welding, and third place in Cosmetology. The Automechanics also won second place in the state competition. Through these and other activities, VICA members are made aware of the responsibilities as well as the opportunities presented in the vocational field.

Diane Pope and Mark Jacobs were honored by their fellow members by being selected as Mr. and Miss V.I.C.A. for the school year 1973-1974.

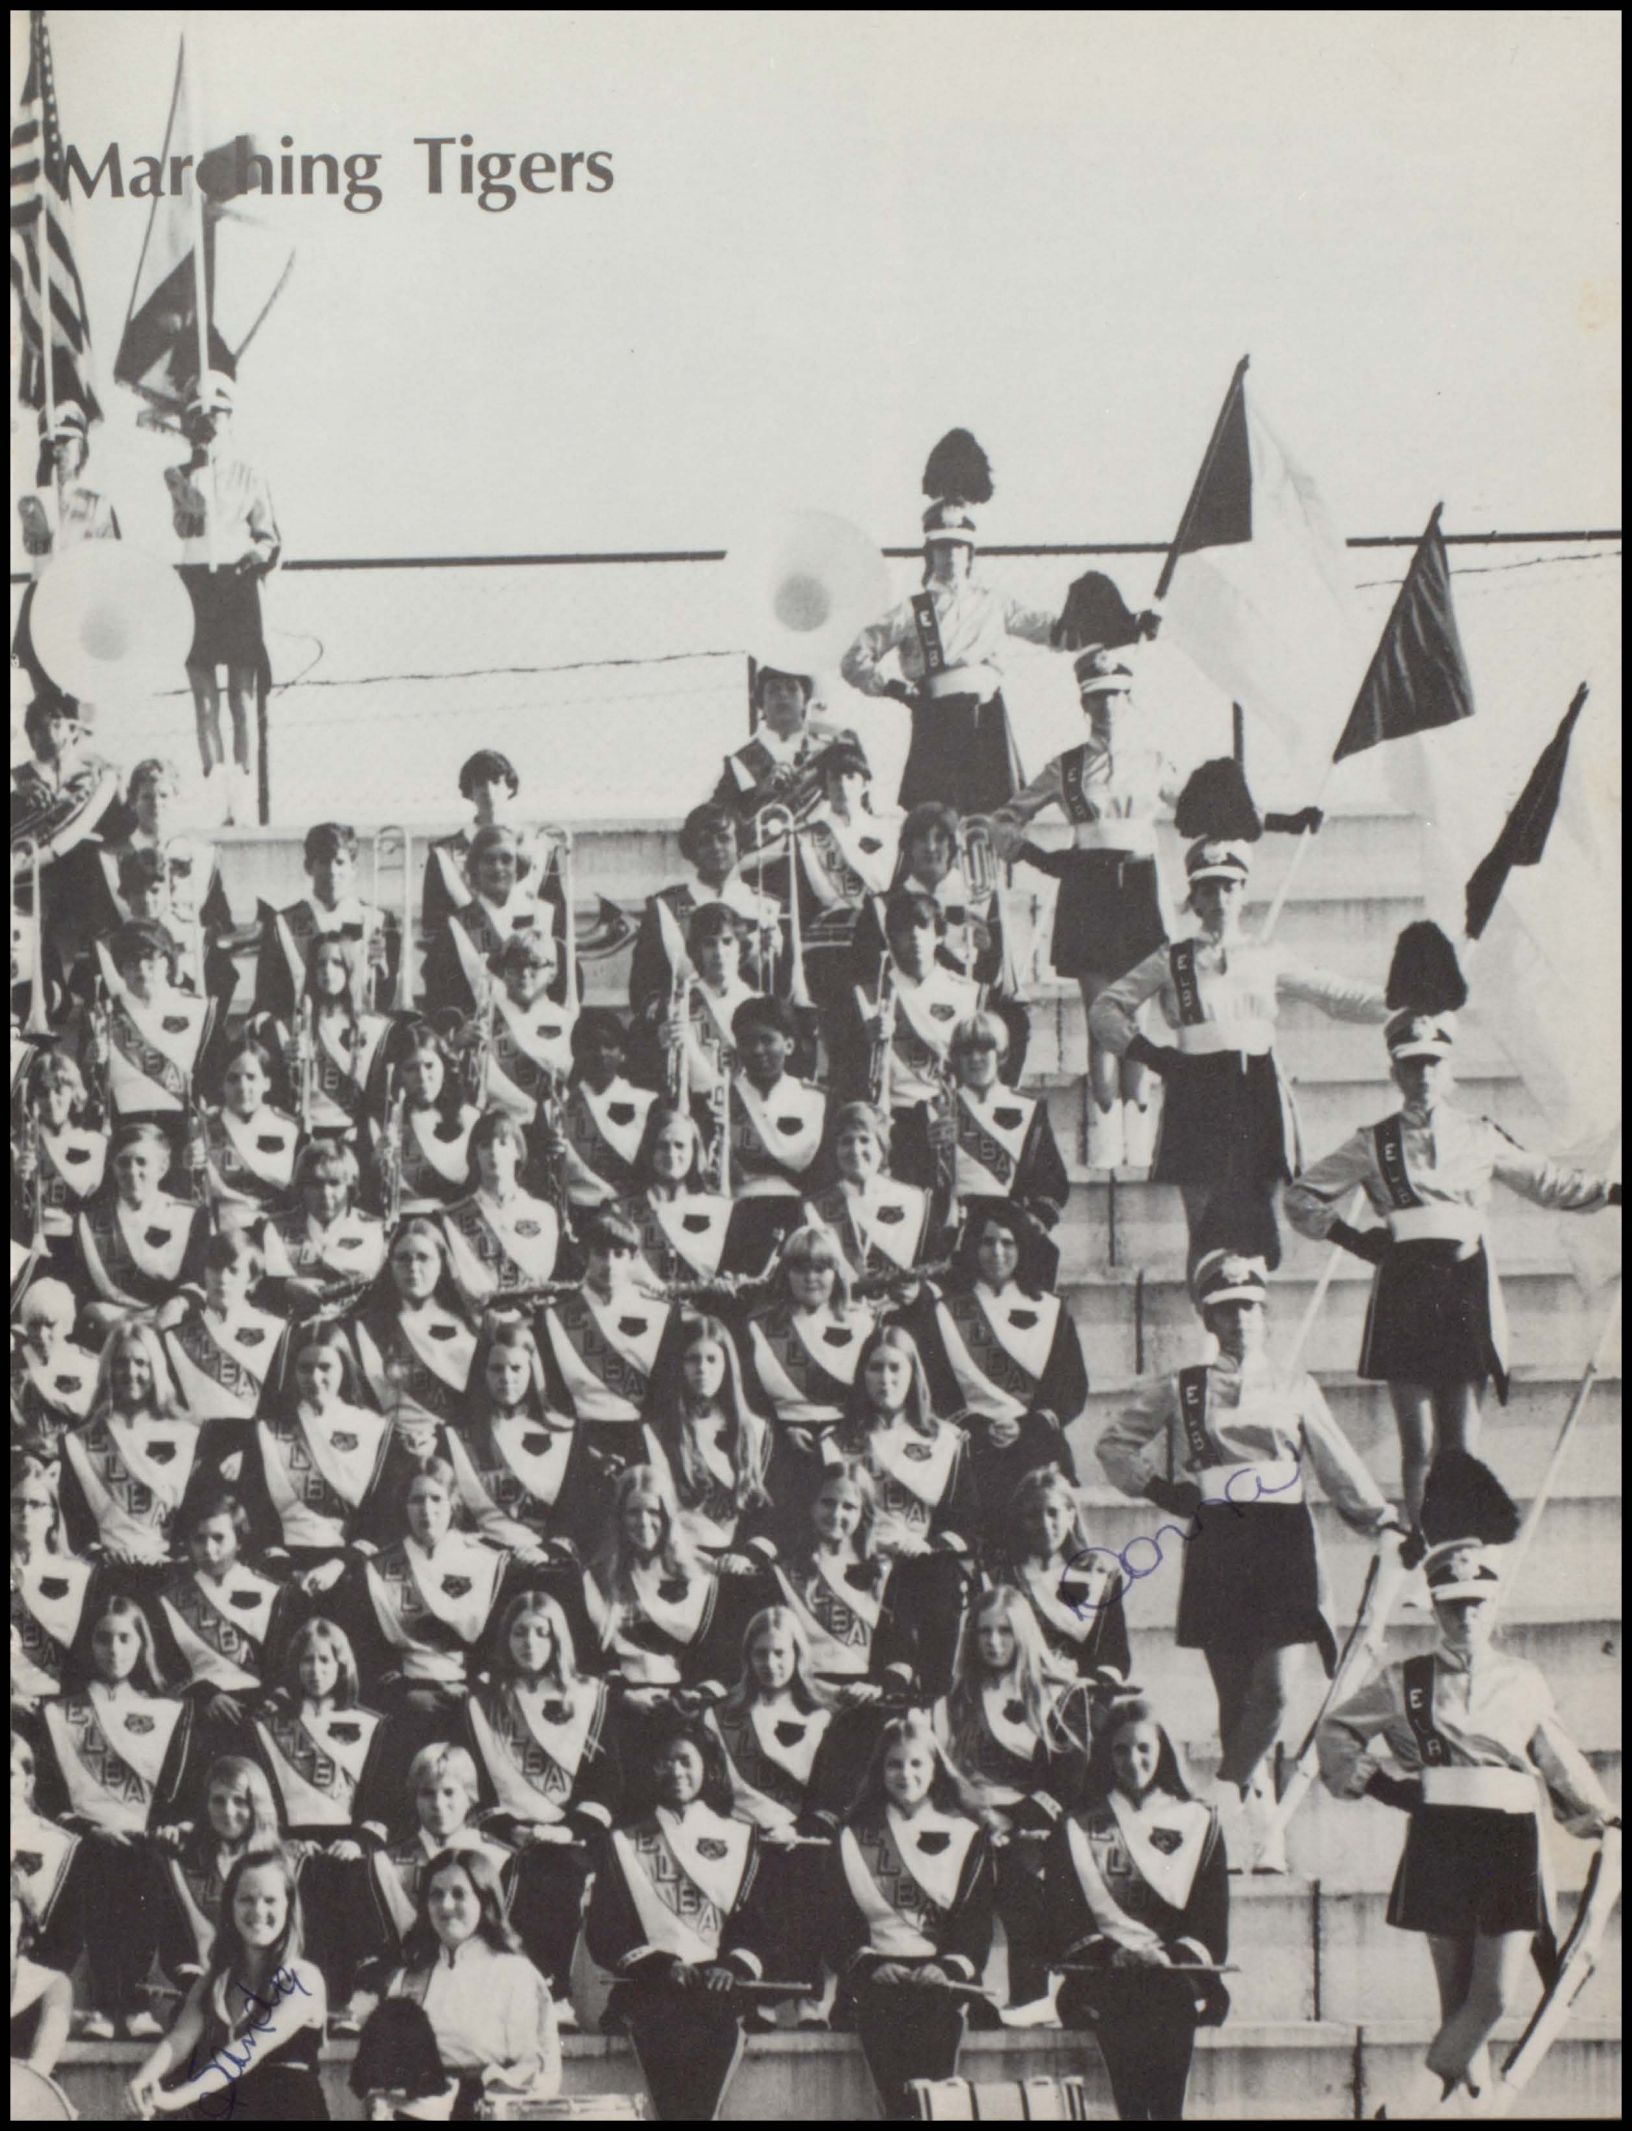

Preparation . . . to be more than just a band . . .

determination . . . to be Number One 1973-1974

Marching Tigers

The Elba High School Marching Tigers are the largest single organization in the school, and are still growing. In addition, the Marching Tigers may just possibly be the group with the widest reaching influence.

In the spring of 1973, the band sponsored Band Day at the National Guard Armory, dedicated solely to raising funds to attend the Fiesta of Five Flags in Pensacola, Florida. Band Day included barbeque sales and all-day concerts by the band, along with full radio coverage. Thanks to the people of Elba, the band netted over two thousand dollars just in donations.

Despite warning from other state bands, the Marching Tigers made a fantastic showing in Pensacola. From three parades and a marching contest, the band brought home five trophies with the drum majors getting two first place trophies and one first place trophy.

This past summer was spent in preparation for football season, and when school started, all those hours of practice paid off. In the ten ball games in which the band marched, moments of elation and satisfaction were felt by everyone. And who could ever forget those wild bus trips?

One of the highlights (or lowlights, depending on the way one looks at it) was the trip nineteen band members made to Gadsden to observe the Mid-South Marching Band Contest. Although the group had planned to return the same day they left, a storm resembling the Genesis flood caused them to be stranded overnight.

The band spent one weekend in Ft. Walton, Florida, at the Miracle Strip Marching Contest. This incredible trip was made possible by subscription sales for the Elba News. At this contest, the band won Superior ratings in all four categories: band, majorettes, color guard, and drum majors. Once more, Mr. Maddox led the Marching Tigers to glory.

In the Troy State Appreciation Day parade, the Tigers marched and returned the next Saturday for the Southeastern States Marching Band Festival, the toughest contest the band attended. At this contest the band itself received three Superior ratings and the three auxiliary units all received ratings of Excellent.

The Marching Tigers remained busy, for the biggest and best band dance ever came December 9, with Jo Ann Cannon and lavish decorations taking top honors. The band, Americana (formerly the Harvy Wallbanger Horn Band!), was the best ever to grace Elba's city limits.

The concert band, often overlooked but equally important, participated in concerts this year. Part of this group, the symphonic band, went to District Contest in Andalusia for competition against themselves and others.

It is a miracle of sociology that over 120 students from widely differing backgrounds can almost live together and coexist, learning and at the same time having a ball. Probably no other organization can boast this. Despite the usual little disagreements that arise, the Marching Tigers are bonded by a common love—the love of music, marching, and enjoying themselves.

Future Farmers of America

The Future Farmers of America is composed of members of the Agri-business Education classes. The primary aim of the organization is to develop leadership, cooperation, and citizenship.

Some of the activities for the year are peanut sales at home football games, concrete mail box posts for its members and others, and several state sponsored contests. This year the club will also landscape the new vocational building and secure fruit and nut trees for members and adults in the community.

Library Club

The Library Club is a service organization whose main objective is to improve the school library services and facilities. The members, who are those students working as assistants in the library, promote interest in books and reading, as well as in the library profession. This year the Library Club is sponsoring the EHS Report.

Future Homemakers of America

The Elba Chapter of Future Homemakers of America is the largest club at Elba High School with 126 members. These young ladies have varied interests and a wide range of goals, but they share a common desire to be a perfect homemaker—not just a housewife.

To be a homemaker is to provide love and understanding as well as hard work and sacrifice to the family.

Under the supervision of Mrs. Mary Young and Mrs. Sylvia Terrell, the Elba Chapter has undertaken many projects to help build a better organization and a better community.

. . . We face the future with warm courage and high hope . . .

FHA officers Bev Cox, Kathy Bowers, Judy Lee, Brenda Spann, Paula Taylor, and Gena Kendrick support the initiation theme "Accent on Career Planning."

JROTC

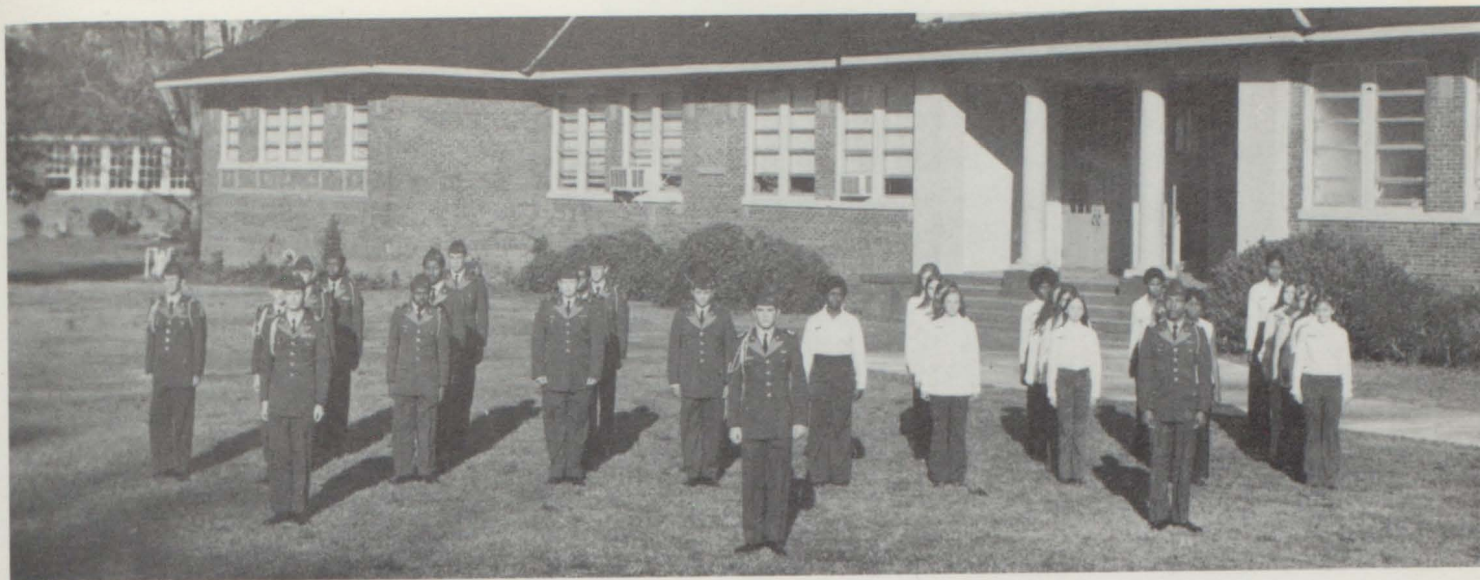

The Junior ROTC program at Elba High School is part of a national program authorized by law, enacted by Congress, and conducted by the Department of the Army in cooperation with the Elba City School Board in response to needs expressed by the people of this community.

Army JROTC is an elective instructional program for 14 to 18 years old students. JROTC at Elba is offered as Military training I (MT-I), Military training II (MT-II), and Military training III (MT-III). Each course requires a minimum of 96 hours instruction per year. The JROTC program is an excellent vehicle for demonstrating practical application of leadership and citizenship taught in many other high school courses, and, as such, will be integrated, insofar as possible, into the overall curriculum. One unit credit is given for each military training course.

No service obligation is incurred by participation. Advanced placement in college ROTC and advanced in-listed rank for initial entry into military service is authorized.

Desired learning outcomes for JROTC foster a strong sense of integrity, responsibility, and respect for other persons; increased insight into ethical values and principles; the ability to live and work cooperatively with others; and a respect for constituted authority.

Development of leadership potential and an appreciation of educational and vocational opportunities afforded by these United States is an important aspect of JROTC program of instruction. JROTC at Elba High School is a unique program in that it is run for and by the cadets.

Creating a yearbook isn't easy

When members of the 1974 Elbala Staff were selected, none of us had any idea of the amount of work that would be necessary to produce a good yearbook. The worry, the pressure, the responsibility . . . a year ago, we would not have believed it. Now we know.

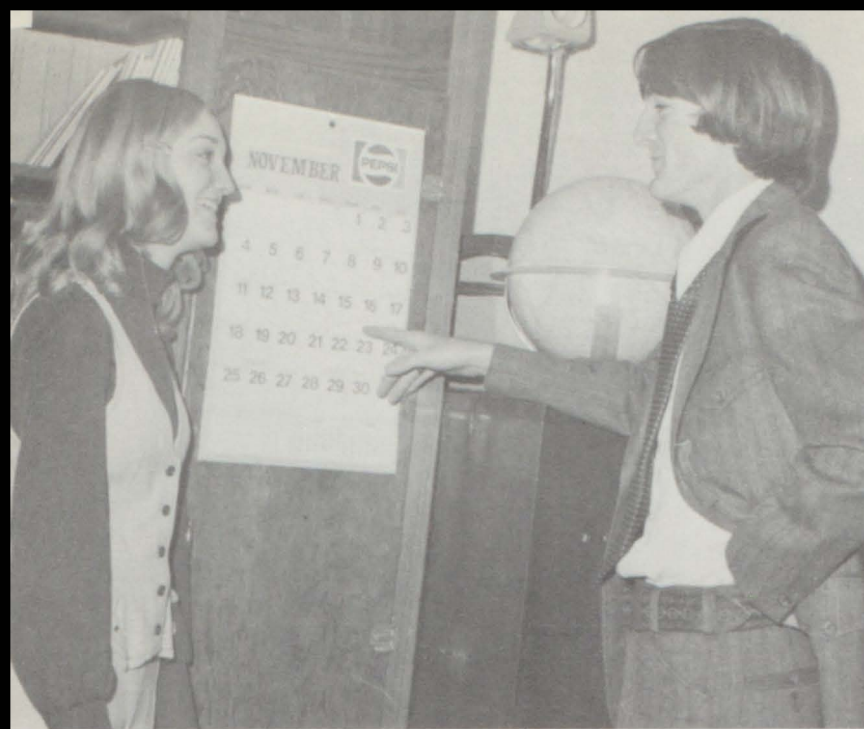

In the early stages of planning, we decided to make this book the best one that Elba High School had ever had. We set to work studying other yearbooks and began to formulate ideas to make our book a relevant one that expressed the feelings and ideas of the students of '74.

The work officially began as we started to lay down our ideas into the first pages of the book. During our planning period, we held bull sessions to sound out suggestions and get everyone's point of view. Bit by bit, piece by piece, something definite began to form. We worked, reworked, wrote, rewrote, sweated, worried, and came up with our first major accomplishment: The first sixteen pages. Sighs of joy and pride arose from the staff as we sent off that first shipment to the printer. One obstacle was behind us.

After that, the editors and staffs worked steadily to produce the remainder of the book. Ideas came more easily as we became accustomed to our jobs. We began to enjoy our task. What were headaches before became simple jobs. The tension eased, but did not subside. Looming ominously ahead was our final deadline. But with lots of work and a little luck, we came up with something we are very proud of: The 1974 Elbala. We present it as a tribute to our class and our school.

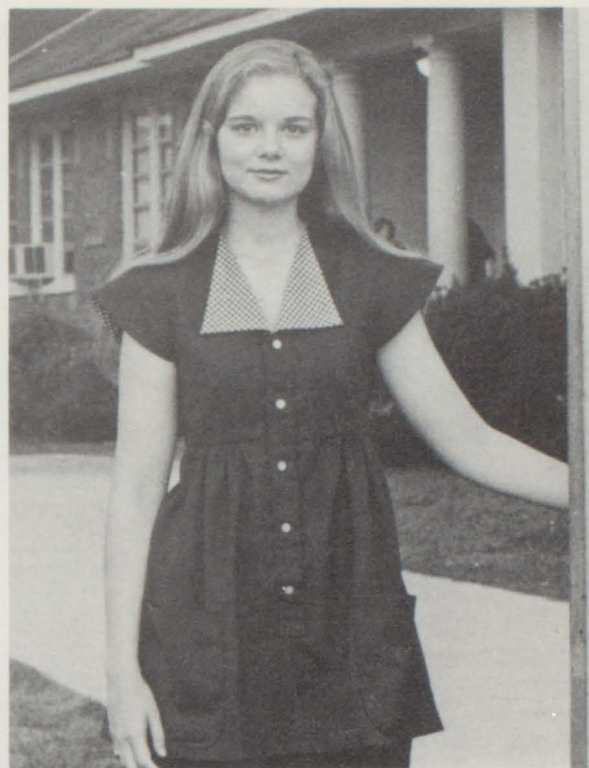

Business Manager Jack Brunson

To have good coverage on school activities, you must have good activities editors. Judy Lee and Jim Williams were well suited for their task. They worked long and hard on the opening pages of the book--giving ideas, making suggestions, doing their part to make the yearbook a good one.

The great amount of work that goes into making a yearbook is useless unless there are people who want to buy the book. The sales staff had the responsibility of selling the Elbala to the students and the city. Theirs was not an easy job, for money was low among students, and the price of the book had been increased. But the staff overcame those obstacles and sold the quota of books necessary to print the yearbook. With a little determination, the sky is the limit.

Debbie Padgett was selected as treasurer of the Elbala because of her experience with money and figures. Through her hands passed all the money that was required to make this yearbook, the 1974 Elbala, a treasure in the years to come.

For any yearbook, a large sum of money must be raised in addition to the money received from the sale of the book. The Elbala Staff accomplishes this through advertising. The extra funds were raised in this way by the Advertising Staff. Theirs was a job of great importance, for without money, there can be no book. Under the direction of the advertising managers, Melanie Carnley and David Kennedy, (left), the staff went to the local merchants to ask their help and support in the last united effort of this Senior Class.

Paula Taylor and Alice Brunson were faced with the challenge of making an ordinarily dull organizations section into an interesting and informative one. Pictures had to be made, faces matched with names, copy written, and lay-outs drawn. Working together, they came up with a section to be proud of.

The sports section of the Elbala is a very important one for a large part of the student body. Mark Jacobs and Mike McGuire were chosen as the editors to assure a section with all the facts and faces combined to show the tension and excitement sports bring. Not an easy job, but one they accomplished successfully.

One of the most tire-some and nerve-racking jobs on the staff belonged to the typists. Brenda Spann and Diane Dawkins were responsible for typing all the copy, captions, and headlines throughout the book. This was a lot of work, and took a lot of time and effort.

Good photography and photographers make a year-book something special. Tony Martin and Phillip Morrow were selected as the El-bala photographers from among many. Our aim was to capture the spirit of the school on film. We hope we have succeeded.

A beautiful features section graces the pages of any year-book. Beverly Cox and Kathy Bowers were selected as features editors because of their ability and willingness to work. With a lot of imagination and a little hard work, their section proved as lovely as the beauties featured within.

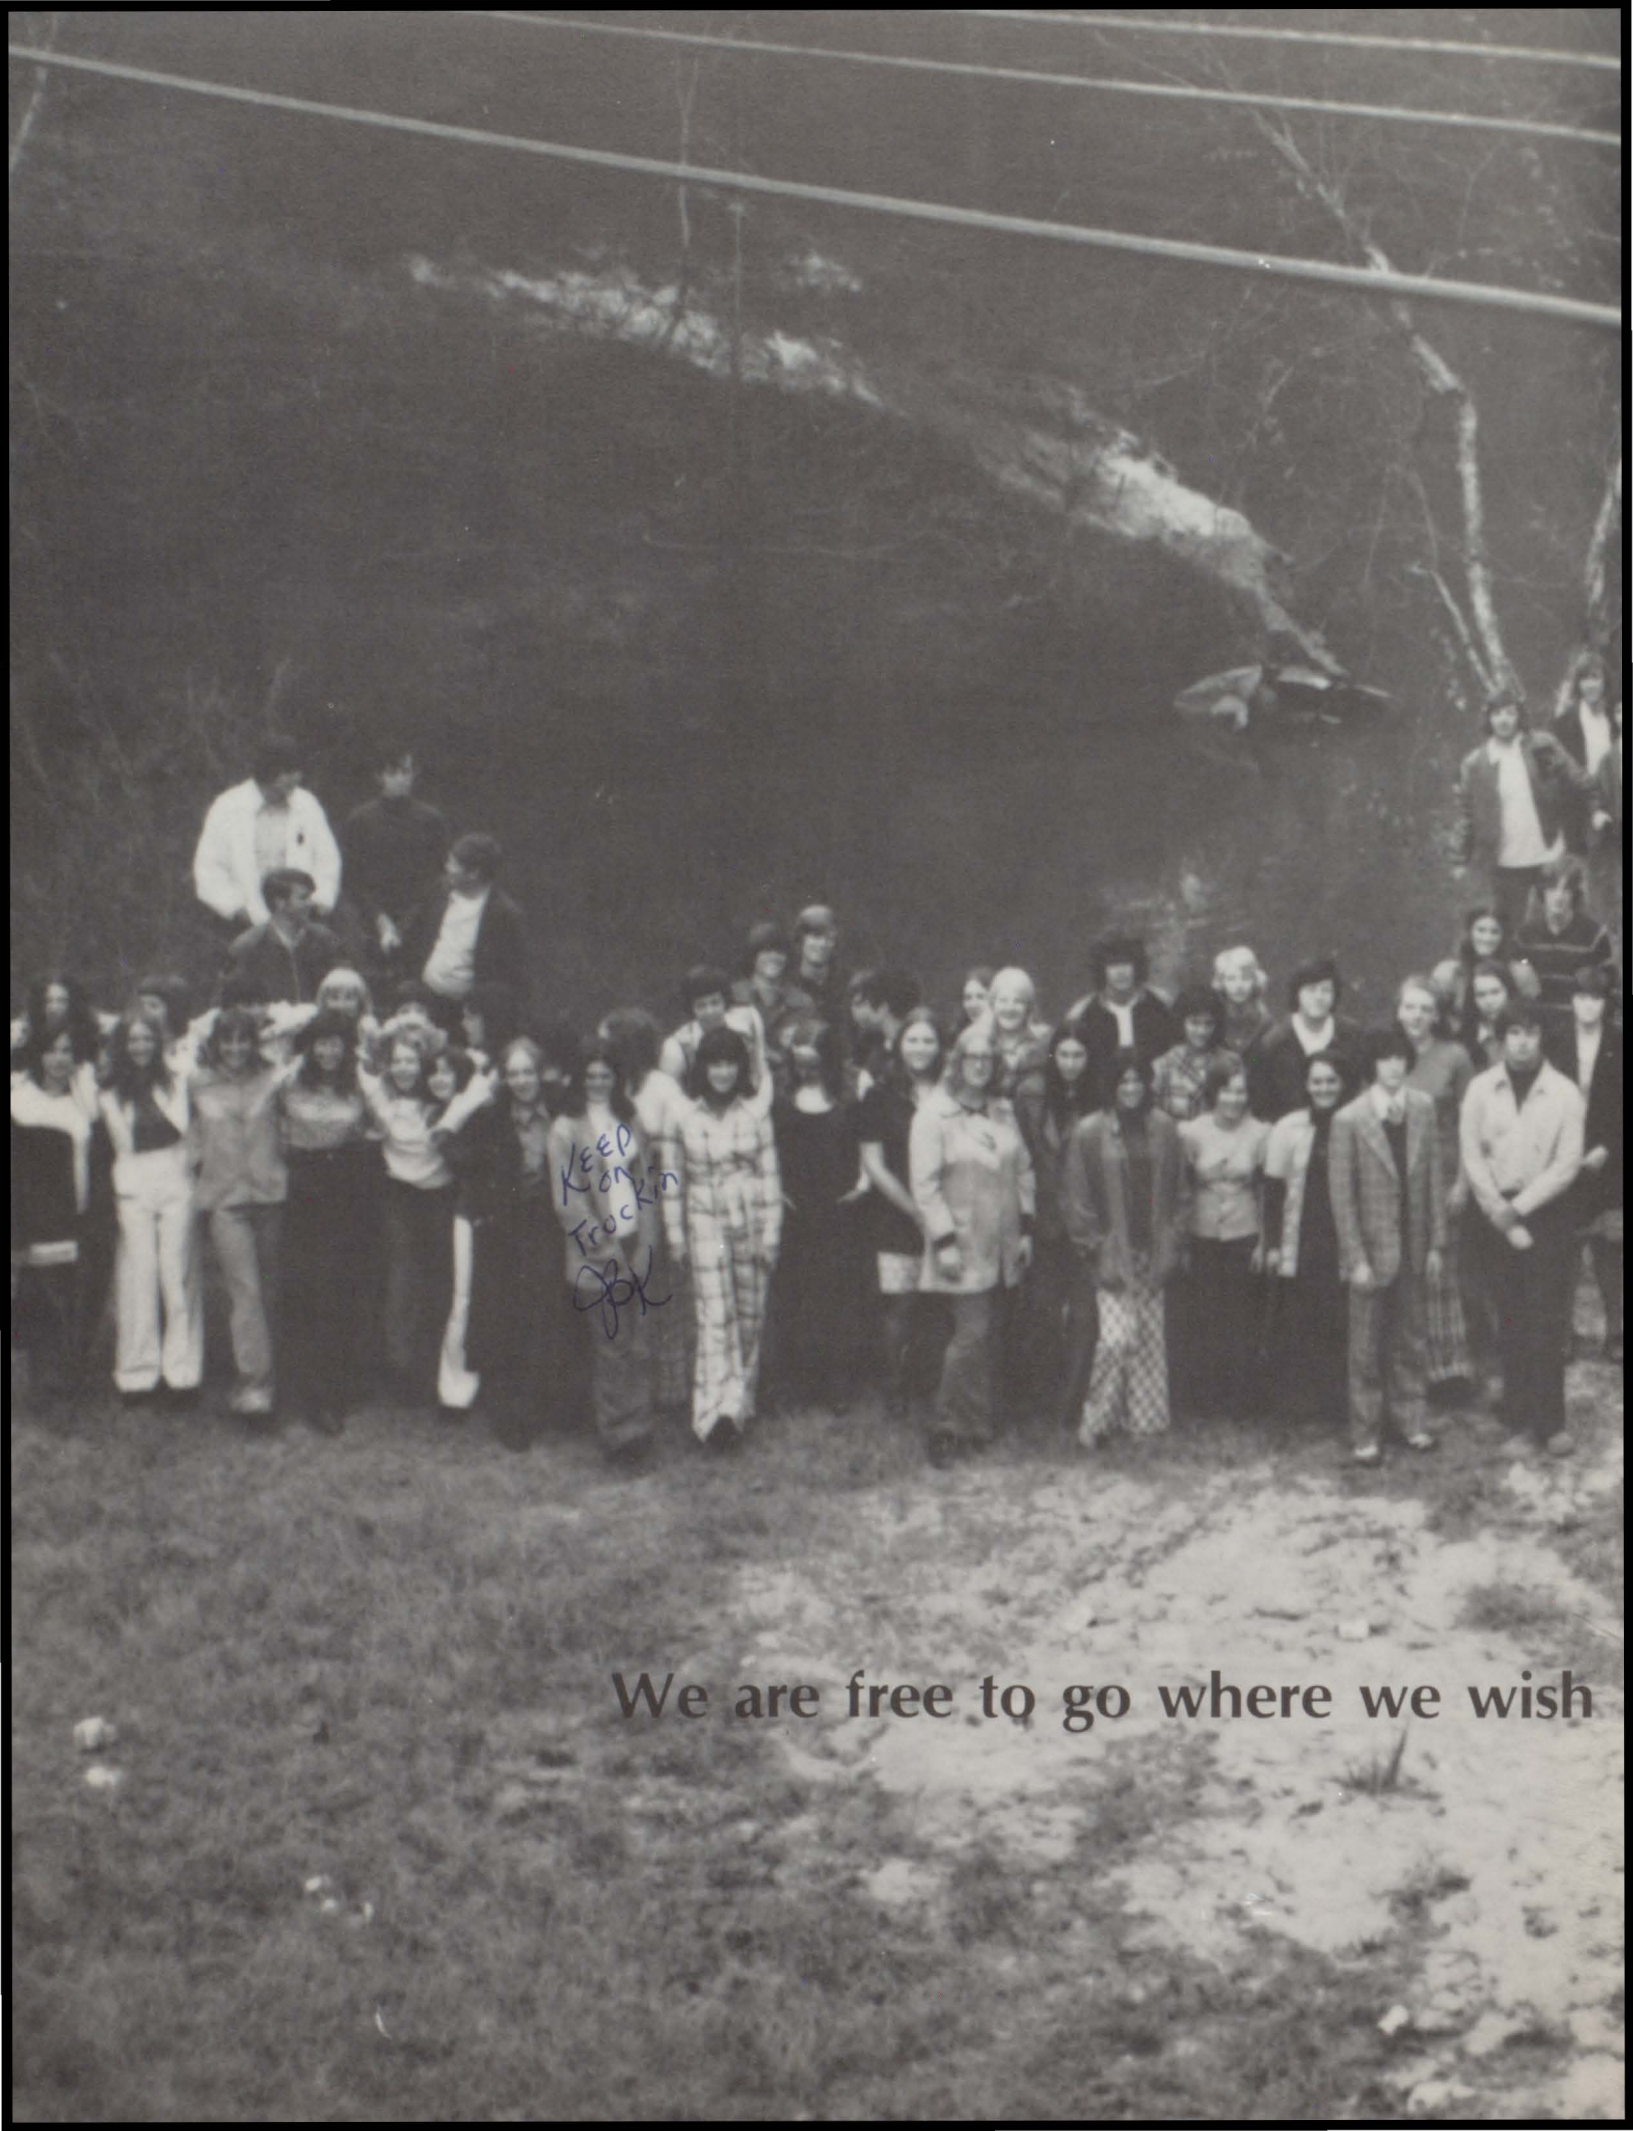

The nine classes editors had, perhaps, the biggest job of all. They had to get class rolls from all grades, match names with faces, alphabetize the pictures, and get everything ready for final shipment. The work was dull and time-consuming, but had to be done. These editors did a fine job with their section.

We are free to go

--Jonathan Livingston Seagull

As we, the Seniors of 1974, look back on the past twelve years, we see the good and the bad, the joys and the disappointments, and always the learning. From mere children, we have become mature individuals by accepting the responsibility to make the most of our world. We look at the future brightly, for it belongs to us. These long years have prepared us for the life we expect to lead in an adult world. Our lives will be different now; some will go to college, others will marry, still others will settle into jobs, but we will forever be alike in the experiences we have shared together at Elba High School.

The Class of '74 is blessed with more than its share of people with ability and talent. Among us are leaders, vocalists, hard workers, outstanding scholars, speakers, athletes, and people with unlimited imagination and ingenuity. Putting aside modesty, we leave classes behind us with some fantastic accomplishments to surpass, such as our Junior magazine sale, our Prom, and finally, our yearbook. Planning and working together on them has broadened our education and increased our experiences.

Here at Elba High School, we have gained not only a good education, but something else as well; we have learned to be ourselves, each as important as the other, and to be proud of being the way we are. For the guidance and the love, we are grateful to God, the faculty, our friends, and our parents.

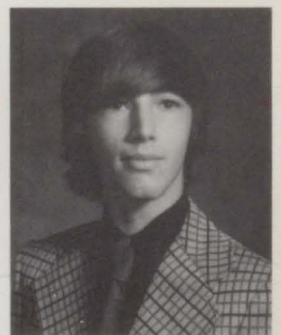

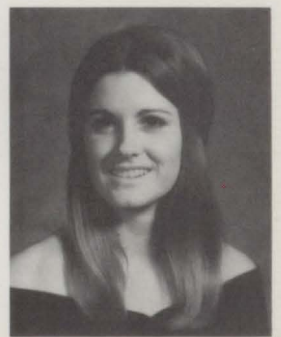

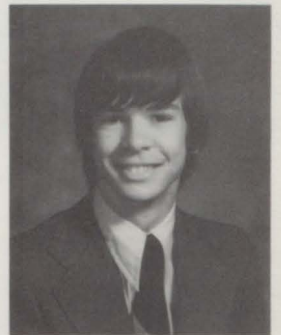

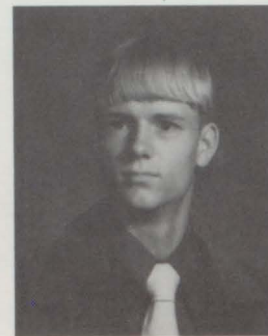

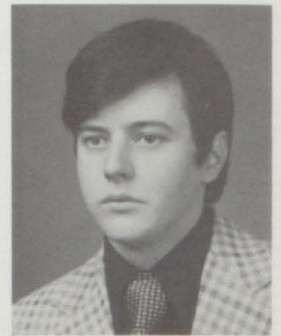

We leave this school, but with a special sadness. We know that we are also leaving behind twelve years of our lives. Some of the friends we have made will grow up and forget us, but the love we have known, the happiness we have shared, will never be forgotten. Neither time nor distance can take away from us those precious memories of the years we spent together at Elba High School.

Cherrie Clay was selected as the 1974 D. A. R. Good Citizen; Jack Brunson was chosen as Good Citizenship Boy.

of 1974

When we became Juniors, we had in our minds to give old Elba High School a boost for the better. Well, we may have gone about it in a completely unorthodox manner, but at least it's kept us off the streets and busy.

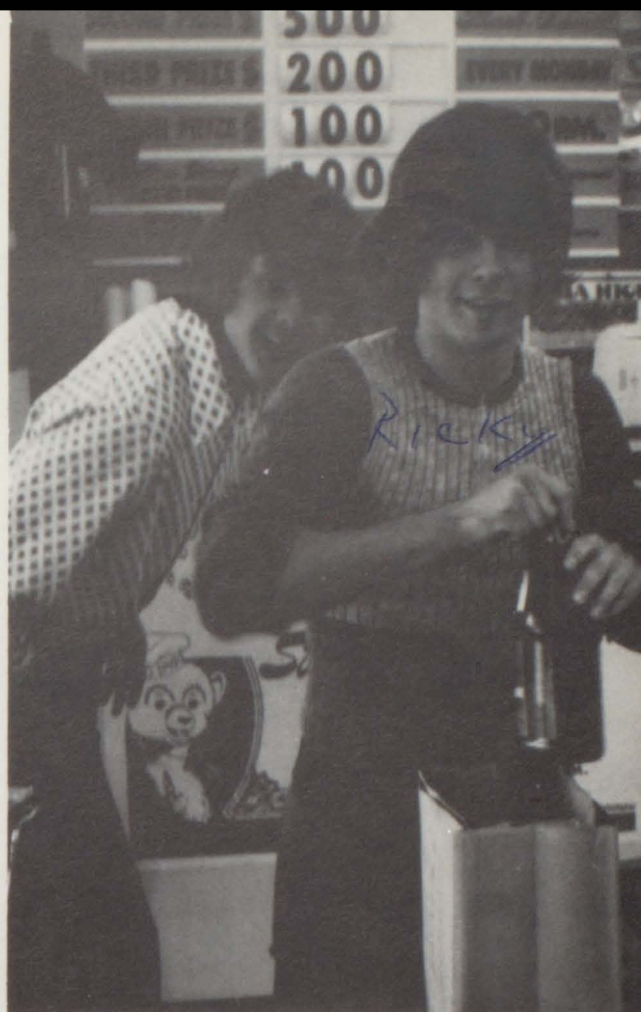

Our first business of the year was to order our class rings. It was only natural for some, but a few of us didn't even realize we were really Juniors and nearly went into a panic about it. That early in the year we still thought that we were Sophomores, that the Seniors were still Juniors, and where the heck were the REAL Seniors?! There seemed to be an awful lot of anxiety in ordering, at least, that's what we thought. As it turned out, waiting for them to come in was even worse. But after all the right rings were connected to all the right hands, it suddenly seemed worthwhile.

For the Homecoming Parade at the end of the football season we decided to make our float the best one yet. Painstakingly we went to work to make our float funny and to the point, while trying to keep within the assigned limitations. It took a lot of time, effort, sore fingers, and chicken-wire, but we were more than pleased with the finished product—a gigantic toilet with the words "Flush 'em Tigers" emblazoned across a roll of paper. We were very proud of our float and our feelings were badly hurt when we did not take first place, but we were Tigers and tigers are cats and cats have nine lives, so between tears we decided we still had a few to go.

An awful lot happened during our Junior year because we tried. We participated in the band as well as in sports and the newly formed Drama Club. All of Elba's majorettes and both her drum majors have been Juniors this year. Many flashy colorguard members and noisier band members have been part of the Junior class. Not to mention some of her star football, basketball and baseball players. All have been Juniors and all have been gr-r-reat!

In all, we Juniors have done many things this year. For the most part we've even had fun. Enough fun that next year we will more than likely STILL be looking for the "real" Seniors!

To Paul Hudson who gave not only his hours to his students, but his love and dedication. His gentle personality and concern for all persons made him one of the wonderful people of Elba High School. His person is gone now, but the memories Paul left with others will always remain—his easy laugh, his understanding, his particular way with people. We have not lost him, but gained him in a new way—in our hearts and minds, where he will be forever implanted.

*Hi Don
Remember the good times
I did
I had any I have worked the better instead of the worse. Keep it easy.
Love you
Tom*

The 1974 Elbala . . . for years we had looked forward to creating it, for months all our work and thought went into it, now for years we have a record in pictures and words of our lives as we lived them in 1974. Every time this book is opened, we hope you will walk again the paths of achievement, fun, beauty, and skill that were shared with friends and family during this time of life. We have given you the material—but you must add the most important part: your sentiment and feeling. We present it to you to enjoy, to value, and to remind you of those short days and months that were spent here within the walls of Elba High School.
